Introduction

This privacy notice explains how the University collects, uses and shares your personal data, and your rights in relation to the personal data we hold. This privacy notice concerns our processing of personal data of past, present and prospective students of the University.

The University is the data controller all personal data that it holds and processes and is subject to the Data Protection Acts 1998 to 2018 and to the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

Types of Information Collected

The University may obtain, hold and process the personal data of students including personal details, family and social circumstances, education and training records, employment information, financial details, and services provided. It may obtain, hold and process the sensitive personal data and special category data of students including racial or ethnic origin, and physical or mental health.

The following types of personal data may be collected;

- Name, contact information (address, email address, telephone numbers), date of birth, PPS number, passport number, nationality and country of domicile
- Information relating to education and training records
- Information relating to family and social circumstances
- Sensitive personal data and special category data including physical or mental health, racial or ethnic origin
- Certain criminal history (The National Vetting Bureau (Children and Vulnerable Persons) Acts 2012 to 2016 provide a statutory basis for mandatory vetting of persons who wish to undertake a work placement and/or activities that bring them into contact with children and/or vulnerable adults. Some programmes at the University require students to undertake mandatory placements with external agencies, which will bring them into contact with children and/or vulnerable adults and in which they will assume positions of public trust. The University is committed to ensuring that only suitable candidates are allowed to undertake these programmes. Apart from the listed programmes, any students who engage in or are in the vicinity of activities that may involve unsupervised access to children and/or vulnerable adults will also be subject to the University's Vetting processes.

How we Collect Information

Personal data and sensitive personal data/special category data held by the University relating to students is obtained directly from the student or applicant, or in some cases from a third party organisation involved in the services provided by the University that has obtained the information in the first instance (for example CAO and SOLAS).

Personal data may be collected in a number of ways as follows;

- Directly from information you provide to us expressing an interest in becoming a student, and/or through the application or registration processes.
- Directly from the Central Applications Office (CAO) which processes applications for undergraduate courses in Irish Higher Education Institutions.

When we share your data with third parties, the University will endeavour only to share the data that is needed, that the data is only processed according to our specific instructions and that the same standards of confidentiality and security are maintained. Once the processing of the data is complete any third parties with whom data was shared will be required to return the data to the University save where they are required to retain it by law.

In some instances, your personal data may be shared with third parties outside of the European Economic Area (EEA). When required, the University will transfer your personal data outside of the EEA where adequate safeguards are in place and there is a lawful basis for doing so.

Individual Rights

Individuals whose personal data and sensitive personal data/special category data is held by the University have the following rights regarding their data:

- The right to be informed
- The right to request access to their personal data held by the University.
- The right to rectification – to have inaccurate or incomplete personal data rectified.
- The right to erasure of personal data – this will only apply where there is no legitimate reason for the University to continue to process the personal data. If you exercise your right to erasure, we will retain a core set of personal data which, for alumni, will include: name, subject(s) studied, graduation details, date of birth and unique identification number so that we do not contact you inadvertently in future, and to maintain your education details for archive purposes. We may also need to retain some financial records about you
- The right to restrict the processing of personal data – individuals have the right to block the processing of their personal data by the University in specific situations.
- The right to data portability – students have the right to request provision of some elements of their information (for example academic progress details) in digital form in order to provide it to other organisations.
- The right to object – students can object to the processing of their personal data by the University in certain circumstances, including the sending and receipt of direct marketing material.
- The right to object to automated decision making and profiling – individuals have the right to object to decisions taken by automatic means without human intervention in some circumstances.

Where the processing of personal data or sensitive personal data/special category data is based on consent, you have the right to withdraw your consent at any time by contacting the department or service who obtained that consent or the Data Protection Officer.

If you are unhappy with the University's handling of your personal data or believe that the requirements of the Data Protection Acts or GDPR may not be fully complied with, you should contact the Data Protection Officer in the first instance. The University's formal complaint procedure can be invoked if appropriate, and you also have the right to submit a complaint to the Data Protection Commissioner.

Data Retention

Any data we collect from you will be stored confidentially and securely as required by University Policies. The University is committed to ensuring that processing of University-controlled data is performed in a secure manner.

In keeping with the data protection principles, we will only store your data for as long as is necessary and in accordance with the University Records Retention Schedule.

We store your personal data primarily on the University premises and secure IT platforms within the European Economic Area ('EEA') which are also subject to European data protection requirements.

We will hold some of your data indefinitely in support of your lifelong relationship with the University, or until you ask us to do otherwise. If you exercise your right to erasure, we will retain a core set of personal data which, for graduates, will include: name, subject(s) studied, graduation details, date of birth and unique identification number so that we do not contact you inadvertently in future, and to maintain your education details for archive purposes.

We may also need to retain some financial records about you for statutory purposes.

We will always respect a request by you to stop contact by any or all methods of communication, or for any specific purpose.
